REUNION IN JAIL!

Papal Secretary of State is new title of Luigi Cardinal Maglione, named by Pope Pius XII.

Maglione Is Appointed Chief Aide to Pope Pius; Known as 'Peace Envoy'

VATICAN CITY, March 11 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today appointed Cardinal Luigi Maglione, former nuncio to Paris, as Vatican secretary of state — the position which, as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the Pontiff himself had filled under Pius XI.

PAPAL SECRETARY—Luigi Cardinal Maglione today was appointed Papal Secretary of State by Pope Pius XII. The Cardinal was formerly nuncio to Paris during the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, and is shown with Pierre de Fouquieres, with whom he served.

Cardinal Maglione, an experienced diplomat, is 62, one year younger than the Pontiff. He is one of the Pope's intimate friends. They were classmates in Capranica College at Rome.

The two men are well acquainted with Europe's trouble spots. Both are diplomats. Both are Italian. The Pontiff has a first-hand knowledge of France.

They, therefore, were considered in foreign circles particularly qualified to ease by diplomacy the stresses between the Vatican and political dictatorships, as well as to make the voice of the Catholic Church heard on behalf of peace whenever a crisis develops among the nations.

One of the secretary's first duties will be to receive the diplomatic corps, the college of cardinals, the Papal court and other Vatican officials at the Pontiff's summer palace, Castel Gandolfo, at 4 p. m. (10 a. m. Boston time) Monday.

SEES DEVALERA

The appointment was announced as part of a busy morning for the Pontiff, who tomorrow will be crowned formally with elaborate ceremonies after mass in St. Peter's.

He received Prime Minister De Valera of Ireland in private audience earlier today.

Thousands of disappointed applicants for tickets prepared to go to St. Peter's square at sunrise tomorrow to wait all morning for a view of the coronation itself on a balcony outside the Basilica about 1 p. m. (7 a. m., Boston time.)

The famous Sistine and Julian choirs will furnish most of the responsive singing during the five-hour Pontificial mass preceding the coronation. They will be assisted by a group of Benedictine monks and several student choirs.

The mass will be that composed by Perosi for beatification last year of Mother Cabrini, Italian born, naturalized American.

Most of the 40 special missions sent by foreign governments had arrived this morning.

KENNEDY ARRIVES

They included Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to London, representing President Roosevelt; delegations from Italy, France, England, Argentina, Bolivia, Honduras, Spain, Belgium, Hungary, Ireland, China, Poland, Switzerland, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Bulgaria, New Zealand, Czechoslovakia, Portugal and Brazil.

Coronation of Pope Pius XII Will Reach Height of Splendor

(Editor's Note—The following description of preparations for tomorrow's coronation of Pope Pius XII was written for International News Service today by Alfred Noyes, famous English poet.)

ROME, March 11 (INS)—The coronation ceremony for which Rome is now preparing seems likely to be the most impressive that has ever taken place in the history of the church, and this is tantamount to saying in the history of the world.

In one way or another it involves all the centuries of history, and makes a thousand years as yesterday, carrying us back to the crowning of Charlemagne.

Tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock the new Pope will enter St. Peter's through the Chapel of the Sacrament, where the dead body of Pius XI lay in state.

In this chapel, from which the dead hand of the former Pope blessed all those thousands of mourners, as they silently filed up the dimly lighted aisle, the new Pope will assume the sacred vestments in a blaze of light, receive an address of congratulation from the cardinals, and the whole Vatican chapter, on his election to the Papal throne.

SCENE OF GREAT SPLENDOR

After this the procession, most wonderful of all processions in its glowing pageantry, will be formed.

With the cross borne before him and all the lost splendor of imperial Rome brought to light and transfigured to a new and higher significance around him, the Pope will be carried by a troup of marchers in

FRANCO GUNS RIP MADRID

MADRID, March 11 (AP)—Booming guns on the regular civil war front along the western margin of Madrid today indicated Nationalist Generalissimo Franco's armies had launched an attack against the city while Republican General Miaja's forces still were mopping up Communists in the war within a war.

Resumption of bombardments along the 28 months old siege lines indicated that the Nationalist forces, which had withheld their fire during the six-day revolt against Miaja's 'peace with honor" program had resumed the attack.

Fierce artillery fire developed on the Nationalist-Republican front southeast of Madrid also and observers reported "heavy fighting" and a "terrific duel" of artillery batteries.

Within Madrid fierce machine-gun fire through the night drove the Communist rebels from what Miaja's national defense junta called their last major stronghold in Independencia square near the center of Madrid.

But the Communists merely retired to set up a new resistance center in a maternity hospital in O'Donnell street.

The hospital contained about 1000 women expectant mothers and others with newborn infants.

Elsewhere in the city Communists were being dispersed and groups of them were surrendering.

The majority of Madrid's residents were barricaded in their homes.

A broadcast from the Madrid radio told all municipal employes who participated in the Communist uprising to return to their jobs tomorrow or suffer "very grave consequences."

Troops loyal to Miaja also at-

SLOVAKS DEMAND TISO BE PREMIER; CALL TROOPS OUT

BRATISLAVA, March 11 (AP)—The Slovak parliament today recommended that Dr. Joseph Tiso be reappointed premier of autonomous Slovakia, the post from which he was ousted by the Prague government for backing Slovak independence agitation.

The recommendation immediately was submitted to the federal government in Prague.

Bratislava remained quiet and there was serious talk of compromise being reached over the extremist Slovak demands for complete independence—not merely autonomy—from the Prague regime.

Karl Sidor, vice-premier of Czechoslovakia and representative of the Slovaks, seemed to be in control of the situation. In a conciliatory radio speech he asked the extremist Hlinka guards (Slovak storm troopers) to maintain discipline.

Hlinka guards paraded through the Slovak capital carrying rifles and pistols.

Heavy detachments of troops, gendarmes and police surrounded Liberty square where German residents of Slovakia were preparing a huge celebration tonight on the first anniversary of Germany's march into Austria.

Twin Boys May Join Their Jailed Mother

Cheered by prospects of a jail reunion with her twin baby sons, a 23-year-old Dorchester mother today pleaded for one more chance, vowing to live her life for her babies alone.

She is Lorraine D. Nixon, one-time cigarette girl in a Boston night club, whose new motherhood betrayed her as an escaped Sherborn Reformatory prisoner, sought since 1936.

Hope for a new life, and a chance to at last make good, came from kindly Dr. Miriam Van Waters, Sherborn superintendent, through whom the mother made her plea.

The sorrowing mother today was in the reformatory hospital; her babies in Boston City Hospital. But the threat they might be given in adoption fast was fading.

CAN HAVE HER BABIES

"If Lorraine is to remain at my institution," Dr. Van Waters told the Boston Evening American," she can have her babies with her. In fact, I would like it that way.

"I have told her she must face court just as soon as she is completely well and that it is up to the judge whether she comes back here.

"If he sees fit to return her, we will arrange to bring the babies to her at the Mothers' Cottage in the Jessie Wilson Sayre building, a half-mile from the jail. I am sure they will make a better woman of her."

To the desperate mother the words were the first cheer she has known since she went a month ago, all alone, to gear her sons at City Hospital.

It was her love for them which led to her recapture.

They were born prematurely,

'Bluebeard' Slayer Admits 5th Murder At Trial in France

VERSAILLES, March 11 (AP)—Responsibility for the fifth of six murders charged against him was admitted by Eugene Weidmann, dark-haired German convict, today in the Versailles criminal court.

Weidmann said he stood by his previous confession despite the objections of his own attorneys.

Among Weidmann's victims was Jean De Koven, 22-year-old Brooklyn dancer, stranged to death in 1937 at La Voulzie, Weidmann's suburban villa.

The fifth killing which he acknowledged was that of Raymond Lesobre, a real estate agent.

Weidmann and an alleged accomplice, Roger Million, accuse one another of a sixth murder committed for profit.

Dive Kills Wife Held as Slayer

BALTIMORE, March 11 (INS)—Mrs. Mary Cummings, attractive 45-year-old matron charged with the "claw hammer" murder of her husband, was killed today when she jumped or fell from a gallery to the main floor of the Baltimore City Infirmary.

Mrs. Cummings, whose relatives only a few hours before had retained former Gov. Harry Nice as her counsel, was in the infirmary for observation.

The gallery where she was quartered is about 15 feet above the main floor level.

Save 2 Women As Home Burns

NORTHAMPTON, March 11 (AP)—Clad only in nightclothes, two women were carried to safety by firemen today in near zero weather from a second-floor window as a cellar fire filled their home with smoke.

The women, Mrs. Millie K. Hillman, 73, and Miss Alice K. Shorey, 53, grammar school principal, apparently suffered no ill effects.

Fire Chief John L. Lucier estimated damage at $1000.

Spring's First

LANCASTER, Pa., March 11 (AP)—With March winds whistling outside and the temperature in the low 20's, twelve-year-old Robert Oettel breezed into a hospital with a real spring-and-summer complaint. He said he had ivy poison—and he did.

Cavemanhandled?

DIVORCE SOUGHT—Mrs. Jean Langley leaves Dedham court with her father, Harold Withington, after she testified her husband, Elmo, was a "caveman lover." Divorce was under advisement today.

Wife's 'Caveman Love' Plea Is Up to Court

Judge Joseph R. McCoole today had under advisement the divorce petition of Mrs. Jean Withington Langley, who in Dedham probate court branded her husband, Elmo V. Langley of Dedham, as a "caveman lover."

The dark-haired petitioner, 26 years, testified her husband forced her to drink whiskey and then carried her to a bedroom and tore off her clothes.

"He told me I was just a slave in his household," she told the court.

Langley, a slight, sandy-haired bookkeeper, denied his wife's charges, and vowed he loved both her and their infant son.

He ridiculed the charge of "caveman love" and stated that his wife visited at his apartment on several occasions since their separation.

EX-SUPT. KING'S COUSIN SLAIN BY GANG, KIN INSIST

Martin King, 24-year-old night club waiter who was found dead in the South End under mysterious circumstances, was robbed and murdered, possibly by an extortion gang, members of his family charged today.

King was a second cousin of former Police Superintendent Martin H. King.

Thorough investigation of the young night club employe's death was demanded today by a sister, Miss Marguerite King, 27, of Buttonwood street, Dorchester, and his brother, Henry King, a former Boston police officer.

They said they believed young Martin King incurred the enmity of a gang of racketeers who at one time allegedly attempted to extort "protection" money from a Warrenton street dine and dance place where he was working.

King went on a tour of the city with owners of the night club and tried to identify or "put the finger on" the would-be extortionists, according to his sister.

She said today she was convinced her brother did not die of natural causes, as was reported by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

King's body was found jammed in a cellar window embrasure, several feet below the level of a Warrenton street sidewalk.

Dr. Leary's conclusion was he had fallen into the opening and had suffocated.

Funeral services for King were conducted today from St. Margaret's Church, Dorchester. Burial was in Calvary cemetery.

The brother and sister said they would take immediate steps after the ceremony to press their demand for a further investigation.

They planned to put all facts in their possession in the hands of District Attorney Foley Monday.

"If this had happened to me," Henry King declared, "I know my brother would not have rested until he had learned the truth. I am determined to do as much for him."

Miss King, an attractive blonde, is likewise sure her brother was a victim of foul play.

"From things my brother told me, I knew he had reason to be afraid," she said. "Those who robbed him took everything in it, wallet, his watch and every identifying paper they could find. They didn't want him identified."

Divorcee Wins Girls, Rebuke

LOS ANGELES, March 11 (AP)—Screen writer Frederick Hugh Herbert lost his court fight for full custody of his two young daughters, but Judge Dockweiler reserved decision today on just what basis the parents shall share them.

The jurist complimented the writer's divorced wife, Arline, for her "fortitude" in frankly testifying she had stayed in hotels and tourist camps over night with her fiance John Cohoe, whom she said she would marry, if he had a job.

"But in the future," said the Court, "her conduct must not give the least bit of scandal to the children."

TWO DIE AS COLD WAVE BREAKS RECORD

Boston Shivers In Zero's Grip; Snow Today

Masses of tropical air were reported rolling northward today to break the grip of a frigid spell which drove the mercury down to an all-time low for this dat ein Boston and contributed to at least two deaths in New England.

With the thermometer registering 9 degrees above zero at 6 a. m., snow and warmer weather were due by tonight, with more snow, followed by rain and thaw tomorrow. Previous cold records for March 11 were 11 above, set in 1885, 1900, 1918 and 1933.

DEAD, MANY HURT

At the peak of the frigid wave, a Roxbury woman died of a heart attack induced by the extreme cold, a child in Maine was killed, a Dorchester man was critically injured and scores of others were hurt as cars skidded on icy roads throughout New England.

In Andover and Belmont, the record was four above, in Lexington and Bedford, two above; in Concord, one above; West Newton, 2 below.

Mrs. Frances C. Barr, 42, of Whiting street, Roxbury, collapsed at Beach and Washington streets in Roslindale and died at the City Hospital.

Physicians said the attack was brought on by exposure to the intense cold.

STRUCK AS CAR SKIDS

George A. Tomlinson, 43, of Highland street, Dorchester, was struck by a skidding automobile at Dorchester avenue and Hancock street; taken to City Hospital. Doctors said possibly his skull was fractured.

Elaine Nelson, 5, was killed by an auto out of control on slippery pavement near her home in Presque Isle, Me.

She Wins Love Strike

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Because her boy friend hadn't spoken to her since their spat last week, Alicia Butler, 17, picketed his home for two hours wearing a sign that said: "Elvin Is Unfair To Alicia."

The boy, Elvin Hanback, 18, finally relented. The strike ended with hugs and kisses.

'Ist Lady' Hits Capital Pomp

ABILENE, Tex., March 11 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt joked about Washington pomp at a lecture here.

"One time," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "we were to have an emissary and his wife, new representatives of a king and queen, present at one of the diplomatic receptions.

"My husband and I decided to use just common sense in presenting them at the reception.

"As we walked into the room, I asked her excellency if we were doing the proper thing. I told her we had no intentions of offending.

"'I don't know,' she answered, 'you see, we haven't been excellencies long enough to find out'."

Liberate Music, Waring's Plea

Young music students, with an urge for self-expression in "swing," will have a defender here, March 16, when Fred Waring, nationally celebrated band maestro, addresses the Eastern Music Educators' Conference.

Long an opponent of "formidable" techniques used by teachers of the classical school in "drilling knowledge of music into the young," Waring will explain and demonstrate his own simple method of coaching glee clubs and illustrate his theory of "tone syllables."

"Harnessing" young people to the piano, as the conventional first instrument to learn, is a common mistake of unimaginative teachers, Waring believes.

Labor Peace Parley Halts in Deadlock

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Negotiators for labor peace representing the Congress of Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor round up their second conference early today amid indications that an armistice was far away.

At the end of five hours of discussion in a mid-town hotel suite, they emerged with a joint statement, saying they would meet again Monday and making clear that no specific agenda had been accepted.

"The joint committee," the announcement said, "discussed at length the proposal submitted by the committee for the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Representatives of the American Federation of Labor proposed that negotiations for an adjustment of the pending differences proceed from the point where negotiations of December, 1937, were left off.

"It was agreed that the proposal submitted by the AFL and any other proposals that may be submitted will be discussed at the meeting which is to convene on Monday at 10 a. m. here."

Harry Bates, chairman of the AFL delegation and president of the AFL bricklayers union, who issued the statement, declined to amplify, and John L. Lewis, the CIO head, likewise refused comment.

The AFL proposals of 1937 substantially were that, after the settlement of jurisdictional problems especially involving "new" CIO unions—those established after the rupture of 1935—had been adjusted, the CIO membership would enter the Federation.

No authority would discuss the present status of the plan offered by Lewis in the original Washington meeting, early this week, that a big new union be established.

Four Suspected In Shop Bombing

Four men were under police surveillance today as East Boston officers and detectives from headquarters continued an investigation of the bombing which wrecked the Willis cafe in Central square.

According to police, business rivalry caused the bombing. Daniel Grady of Condor street, the janitor, narrowly escaped death, having stepped over the bomb, believing it to be a piece of newspaper, only a few seconds before the explosion.

NAZI BRIDE—Asking annulment of her New York marriage, Mrs. Adolph Trunk charged her husband claimed to be a Nazi, declaring he did not believe in religion, and refused to follow a civil wedding with a church ceremony. They were wed in 1937.

Panama Canal Bared as Easy Prey to Foe

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

(Copyright, 1939, by International News Service. Reproduction in Whole or Part Strictly Prohibited.)

PANAMA CITY, March 11—Officially and to the public, Panama Canal authorities, civil, naval and military, put an optimistic face on the possibilities of defense of America's life-line.

But privately the men best acquainted with the triple threat of the war-like future predict that a major national disaster could happen here overnight.

WOULD PERIL NATION

Within one hour the canal could be so thoroughly destroyed that it would take a year or more to repair.

Construction of a third set of locks for exclusive use of the navy could not prevent it. For if the Pedro Miguel locks were destroyed, the flood of water would carry away the Miraflores locks, all the water would drain out of Lake Gatun and the third set of locks would be as useless as the present ones.

If the fleet were thus caught in one ocean while an enemy attacked in the other, or if the fleet were divided, the consequences would be incalculable, perhaps fatal to the national security of the United States.

CRUISER HOUSTON IN PANAMA CANAL

Foes Could Destroy It in One Hour

ALIENS FEARED MOST

Blowing up of the locks is the major threat. Who could do it? There are three classes to be drawn from: Crews of merchant ships going through the canal; gangs of any of the three groups of Japanese, German or Italian operatives now busy at espionage in Panama; finally, the 10,000 aliens still employed in the Canal Zone.

The last group, seldom discussed, is taken most seriously by those upon whom responsibility rests. Mostly negroes, nearly all from the West Indies, with British citizenship, they were loyal during the great war.

But another war would present an entirely different problem to the defenders of the canal. Japan and Italy were on our side in the last war. There was no real threat to the canal from the Germans.

Hence there was no real pressure on the laborers in the canal zone from enemy powers. Today the possibility of such pressure is tripled.

The tradition that American white men do no manual labor in the canal zone started the system.

Eight-five soldiers, without machine-gun emplacements or pill boxes, are the whole guard from Pedro Miguel locks to the Miraflores locks.

Variation one: A merchant vessel loaded with high explosives is in the Pedro Miguel locks. Japanese merchantmen often carry crews of 150. It would be easy to conceal another 200 armed men below decks.

COULD SEIZE CANAL

It is estimated that such a well-organized party could hold its position at the locks for two hours before troops from the forts could reach and overpower the attackers.

Meanwhile enemy technicians descend into the lock control rooms and with explosives intelligently placed, prepare to destroy not just one lock, but to paralyze the whole canal.

Variation two to the same nightmare: Several autobuses such as regularly carry natives on the highway to Gamboa, load in Panama City with men carrying concealed arms and explosives. They attack them in the same way, first overpowering the guard. They could either do the whole job themselves or reinforce the crew of a ship.

There are a score of other nightmares. The enemy ship with a trapdoor in the hull, to let loose a huge mine with a time-fuse to explode in the locks after the ship has passed.

There is the threat from the air. And then the threat, which the present military authorities of the Canal zone take most seriously, of capture of the canal.

JOB AIM OF 'HIGH SITTER'

CLEVELAND, March 11 (AP)—The optimism that impelled Ray Stanta, 19, ex-soda jerker, to perch on a lofty girder of Cleveland's "high level" bridge for six hours blossomed afresh today in the snug warmth of the county jail's observation ward.

Thither was he taken yesterday after firement hoisted a ladder to his hideaway 70 feet above the span's traffic, ending his "you-find-me" game with a squad of police.

Stanta climbed to his precarious nook in the hope that "by showing such initiative I could get my name before employers."

Today he continued to nourish that hope.

"I wanted to get into employers' offices by invitation," he said. "This looked like a good stunt that hadn't been tried before."

Recalling the sharp off-lake wind and temperatures ranging from 27 to 30 degrees, Stana smilingly accepted his incarceration in a psychopathic ward.

But he missed a book he dropped during his altitudinous sojourn, titled "New Frontiers of the Mind."

Science of Substrato Flying Subject at Harvard Conclave

The aviation industry today hailed with delight the history-making substratosphere flight from Minneapolis to Boston in which passengers for the first time used newly designed "streamlined" oxygen masks.

Among nine passengers on the Northwestern airliner were Mayo Foundation doctors, who designed the feathery masks; airline executives and Mrs. Mal Freeburg, wife of the line's chief pilot, who flew the big ship.

The doctors were invited by Dr. Ross McFarland of the Harvard University Fatigue Laboratory to exhibit and demonstrate their apparatus at the conference on the physiological problems of aviation to be held today and tomorrow at Harvard.

Stepping from the plane just four hours and 50 minutes after they took off from Minneapolis, the travelers showed no ill effects from their journey through the thin air levels.

The Mayo scientists expressed their elation at the success of the experiment, saying that the use of the masks caused no discomfort and that sharp headaches and difficulty in breathing were experienced when they were removed for brief intervals during the flight.

The first third of the sub-stratosphere journey was made at 23,000 feet and the remaining distance was covered at a 20,000-foot altitude. The average speed was 220 miles an hour.

Dr. W. M. Boothby, leading the Mayo delegation, declared that the success of the tests presaged regular commercial flights at high altitudes in the near future.

Stratosphere flights have been advocated for commercial purposes as more economical due to less air resistance and more favorable for flying because of better wind and weather conditions.

Dr. A. Uehlein said the test was the most satisfactory ever made of the equipment, and Dr. Arthur H. Bulbulian said the flight seemed more comfortable than those made at lower levels.

"Everything was fine," Mrs. Freeburg said. "I didn't mind the mask at all. It was light and comfortable and I even ate while wearing it."

Freeburg explained that although the temperature went as low as 38 below zero there was no ice formation on the wings because of the lack of moisture in upper air levels.

The masks, resembling football roseguards, connect with a main oxygen compartment in the plane and have valves for disposing of exhaled air.

Doctors who made the journey said the masks were practical not only in aviation but could be used in hospitals much more economically than oxygen tents.

PASSES UP $93,000 TO STAY HERE

PEABODY, March 11—Although he lives with his wife in a small one-story house in Birch street, his daughter Mildren is in the J. B. Thomas Hospital and he's in need of money, John M. Cook won't go to Germany to collect a legacy of $93,000.

To get the money left him by his mother he would have to contract with the Nazi government to live there. Otherwise, he would not be permitted to touch a mark of it.

Born in Germany, Cook is a YD veteran, entitled to wear a wound stripe. He lives on his army compensation and what little he makes from his chicken farm, and has lived in West Peabody for 16 years.

"I'm going to stay here," he said.

Mildred, 16, recently was stricken with appendicitis.

New Selectman Pays Pool Fine

PLYMOUTH, March 11—William H. Barrett, newly-elected selectman, who charged in campaign speeches that police had "framed" him, meekly accepted a guilty verdict on two lottery counts here today.

Special Justice Theodore H. Hisbee lectured him, imposed a $100 fine and suspended sentence for two years on a six-month term in the House of Correction.

Barrett paid the fine.

Barrett was arrested 10 days before his election last Saturday on charges of being concerned in a lottery and possessing lottery tickets. He insisted he had been "framed" and won the election.

Thief Smashes Gem Shop Window, Flees

Police today were hunting for a man about 40, who smashed the window of the A. Stowell, Inc. store in Winter street, snatched watches valued at several hundred dollars, and ran.

Racketeers who Pose as Spiritualists

Rose Mackenberg, Who Was Houdini's Chief Investigator of Hoaxes, Reveals How Conscienceless Criminals Take Advantage of the Grief and Faith of Those Who Seek to Communicate with Lost Loved Ones.

AMERICA'S most vicious criminals are the charlatans who betray and plunder heartsick victims in the name of the dear, departed dead.

These tricksters try to hide under the cloak of Spiritualism. They ply their unholy traffic in secret and in comparative security since they are rarely publicly exposed, and even more rarely prosecuted.

Rose Mackenberg, who was chief investigator for the late Harry Houdini in his campaign against fraudulent mediums, has helped send many of these scoundrels to their rightful place behind prison bars. Now she tells exactly what happened—in some of her most noteworthy cases—in a thrilling article which she wrote for The American Weekly. Don't miss it!

All Eyes on Hitler In Slovakian Crisis

President Hacha's approval a new cabinet list of moderate Slovaks willing to continue collaboration within the federal union. The new cabinet of autonomous Slovakia was expected to be formed by tonight.

The Czechs were still in the dark over the one big question everywhere asked since the Czech lion showed its teeth yesterday when Czech troops were sent to Slovakia. The question: What is Germany's attitude?

Well-informed sources said no official indication had been received from Berlin. (A Berlin dispatch said in foreign office circles there, a serious view was taken of the situation.)

Hitler Still Silent On Slovakian Crisis

BERLIN, March 11 (AP)—Germans took a strong view of the conflict in Czechoslovakia today but a government spokesman suggested Chancellor Hitler would observe events for a while before committing himself.

The government by early afternoon had not replied to the note of Joseph Tiso protesting against his removal as premier of Slovakia and the dismissal of other provincial ministers by President Hacha.

Hitler tomorrow will attend memorial day exercises at the state opera and listen to a commemorative address by Admiral-General Erich Raeder, chief of staff of the navy, in honor of the first anniversary of the annexation of Austria.

Vienna on Monday, the actual anniversary, hopes to see the chancellor in its midst for the celebration of Anschluss.

Britain's Peace Talk Falls on Deaf Ears

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare's peace call for collaboration between dictators and democracies was virtually disregarded today because of European preoccupation with troubles in Czechoslovakia.

Sir Samuel, in a speech last night, suggested a world five-year plan whereby for five years there would be "neither wars nor rumors of wars."

The five European powers "blessed in their efforts by the President of the United States might make themselves eternal benefactors of the human race," Sir Samuel said.

Two events robbed the speech of any visible good effect—the Slovak-Czech dispute, which aroused fears of German intentions, and Joseph Stalin's speech lashing Britain and France.

tacked a Communist "provincial" headquarters with field guns. During the bombardment fire developed in the buildings. Miaja troops finally broke in and seized a few Communists.

LOYALISTS BATTLE

A mobile army loyal to Miaja, brought in from the east, played the major role in driving the Communists from Independencia square.

Loyal troops demolished barricades the Communists had raised in Independencia square to clear the way to outlying Ventas, where, earlier, groups of revolters had attacked encamped Republican forces.

The Communists were dispersed in Ventas after a brief but sharp clash.

One indication that the back of the Communist uprising was broken was that the revolters were scattered, faced with great difficulty in obtaining food and unable to maintain close contact among their separated strongholds.

PLEADS FOR POLICEMEN

It would cost the city only $64,000 a year to give policemen a night off in seven instead of one night off eight, according to City Councilor Robert G. Wilson, Jr., backing a council move to make a day off a week the rule.

LOWELL LAWYER DIES

LOWELL, March 11 (AP)—Daniel J. Donahue, 78, practicing lawyer in this vicinity for a half century, died today after a week's illness.

$3000 to Girl Hurt at School

CORTLAND, N. Y., March 11 (AP)—New York state has been ordered to pay $3000 to an injured schoolgirl gymnast because she was "compelled to perform such fantastic and perilous antics" as the head stand.

Justice Christopher J. Heffernan, who awarded Elizabeth Gardner, 14, the judgment for a dislocated vertebra, ruled it "absurd" to consider the head stand "a necessary part of education."

A lower court of claims previously found the girl, a Cortland normal school pupil, "was injured in an unavoidable accident." She appealed.

Threat to Soviet Seen by Stalin

MOSCOW, March 11 (AP)—Joseph Stalin in one of his rare addresses declared today that England, France and the United States had ceased to resist world aggression in the hope it would lead to a ruinous war against Soviet Russia.

The hope, particularly of England and France, the Soviet leader told the opening session of the 18th all-union congress of the Communist party, was that a German or Japanese war against Russia would weaken and exhaust the combatants whereupon the democracies would step in to dictate peace.

BECKER CASE TO REOPEN

The Public Utilities Commission is expected Monday to reopen the Becker case, one in which Frank E. Riley, ousted head of the commercial vehicles division, was exonerated by a 4 to 1 vote.

In original charges last summer, Samuel Becker testified he had paid Riley $2660. The case was recalled in Riley's plea for reinstatement, when a witness charged the former division head had sought to suppress evidence at that time.

Francis E. Rafter, Riley's counsel, protested that such action would mean double jeopardy for his client, but State House observers declared the commission would vote for a reopening.

The new evidence was given by Jonas Gaffey of Belmont, witness called in Riley's hearing on 17 charges of irregularities, including soliciting and accepting gratuities.

Gaffey testified he received a summons from the commission last summer to the Becker hearing and a short time later received a telephone call from Riley.

MET RILEY ON PIKE

As a result, he said, he drove to an appointed spot on the Concord turnpike near his home at 7 p. m. a few nights later and met Riley.

"He asked me if I was going to appear and I told him I couldn't do anything else because I was under summons," the witness declared in answer to McCue's questioning.

"'Can't you be sick?' Riley asked me.

"I told him I was sick, but that I had to appear because I had been summoned and that was all there was to it."

Graham Hazy On Storm Bids

Edward T. P. Graham, architect in charge of the disputed hurricane contracts at state colleges, doesn't remember whether he showed the contracts to former Governor Charles F. Hurley before he submitted them to James G. Reardon, ousted commissioner of education.

This was his statement before Judge George E. Leary in Suffolk Superior Court, as the trial involving payment to contractors, and $26,000 compensation for Graham, recessed until Monday.

Canada Would Scare Off Foes

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Canada would be adequately protected from invasion if electric signs were erected along her coasts advertising the national debt, the number of unemployed, and the number of homes lost through taxes and mortgages, J. C. Landeryou, social credit member from Alberta, told the House of Commons.

"If any enemy saw the mess we're in, they would hesitate to take over such a country," he said during defense debate.

No Game Today

'AMAZING AMECHE' CAPTIVATES BOSTON

By ANN MARSTERS

It would have been just another humdrum week day, but Don Ameche arrived, flashed his smile around town and put a lift into the lives of innumerable young admirers by signing his autograph.

"Isn't it astonishing," he demanded when it was all over, "how people will turn out to see a movie actor?" (We had to say no, we didn't think it was astonishing—but he persisted):

"When several hundred people will actually wait around to get a look at a guy named Ameche—well, it's astonishing. And very pleasant, too, from my point of view."

Ameche came to town yesterday (just for the day) to celebrate the fact that, 65 years ago in Boston, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell transmitted the first telephone message. Reason is that Ameche's latest picture is the Cosmopolitan-20th Century Fox production, "The Story of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell," with Loretta Young and Henry Fonda.

THINKS FILM HIS BEST

It's to be released in April and Don is certain that it is the most important picture of his career. He hasn't seen the finished product, yet, but he saw the rushes, day by day as the picture was being made, and, he said, they seemed extraordinarilly exciting and good.

There are a few actors who refuse to go to see their own films—out of nervousness or indifference or fear, perhaps—but Don Ameche often sees one of his own pictures a number of times.

"That," he said, "is the best way for a movie actor to learn more about acting. "I suffer while I'm watching myself on the screen—and my wife won't sit within ten rows of me. All my mistakes scream at me, and nothing seems to register in quite the way I intended."

Mr. Ameche's wife, Honore, is a pretty, ash blonde, and they have two tow-headed little boys named Donny and Ronny—ages five and three. Ameche did not bring his family east with him, for this is really a business trip, and he'll return to Hollywood in two weeks. Until then, his weekly radio program will be broadcast from New York where Dorothy Lamour and Edgar Bergen are also staying.

BROTHER FOLLOWS STEPS

Ameche mentioned his brother, Jim, who has done a great deal of radio dramatics and whose voice sounds so much like Don's own.

"He will, without a doubt, be in the movies some day, but I don't think he's quite ready yet. He's only 23, and I want him to have more experience. He's much better looking than I am, and he has lots of talent."

When Jim does go to Hollywood, Don doesn't see any reason why he should need to change his last name.

"Some people think it might prove a handicap for him to use a name that is already established in Hollywood," he said, "but I don't think a name can make the slightest difference. If you're good enough, you'll succeed anyway."

Don has no notion of inducing any more of his brothers and sisters to enter the movies—and it so happens that he is one of eight children. That would make an awful lot of Ameches in any one business. And yet, wouldn't it be fine to see them all in one picture entitled—after the "Four Daughters" idea—"Eight Ameches." Somehow, —Don Ameche didn't seem to think so.

Quincy Policemen To Appeal Decision

E. John Reid, dismissed from the Quincy police force, and Patrolman John E. Wuerth, sentenced to 210 hours punishment duty, will appeal the decision of Chief Avery within a day or two.

Oscar Titlev of Boston, their attorney, will ask the Quincy district court to reveiw their case, and examine the evidence.

F. A. Merrill Rites Tomorrow

The funeral of Frank Alden Merrill, engineering contractor, who died at his home in Spring street, Malden, will be held from the First Baptist Church in Malden tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be in Forest Dale cemetery.

Mr. Merrill was president of the Merrill Company, Inc., of South Boston, and during the World War was in charge of engineering at Fort Devens. He also supervised projects in New York, Florida, Montana and Virginia.

Surviving are his wife, a son, William F. Merrill of Malden, a daughter, Mrs. J. Newton Esdaile of Winthrop, three sisters and a brother.

FRANK C. HERRICK

Called king of the theater ticket brokers, and certainly the oldest, Frank C. Herrick, 78, died at his home in Kilsyth road, Brookline. He had been ill only a few days.

Fifty years ago, he opened the first ticket agency in the old Hollis Theater, had branch offices at the old Revere House, Tremont House, Parker House, Young's Hotel. His office when he died was in Boylston street.

When he went into business, he expanded it until he had the Hollis Street, Colonial and Park Theaters and the idea spread to other cities.

JAMES H. WALKER

AMESBURY, March 11—Funeral services for James Hume Walker, former auto body manufacturer, who died while playing golf at Pinehurst, N. C., will be held from his home here Monday afternoon.

He was an entry in the senior golf tournament, and was engaged in the semi-final when he collapsed and died of heart disease.

Mr. Walker was president of the Tin Whistlers Club of Pinehurst, founder of the Amesbury Country Club, vice-president of the Powow River National Bank, a trustee of the public library, member of the Rotary, the Chamber of Commerce and the Masons.

He is survived by his wife and two sisters.

HANNAH WARDLE

Services for Mrs. Hannah Wardle, widow of Alfred Hill Wardle, Fairmount street, Dorchester, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 from Greenwood Memorial Church. Brial will be in Cedar Grove cemetery.

She was a native of Goshen, N. Y. Surviving are two sons, Warren H. Wardle of Laconia, N. H., and John Wardle of Boston, a traveler and lecturer, two daughters, Mrs. Graham Nickerson of East Harwick and Miss Ethelwyn of Arlington.

CHARLOTTE E. SEAVEY

A few hours after she had attended the funeral of her husband at Saco, Me., Mrs. Charlotte E. Seavey, 90, of Sargent avenue, Somerville, collapsed and died in th Forth Station.

GAS VICTIMS RECOVER

Italy Jews in Fear As 'Reprieve' Ends

ROME, March 11 (AP)—An estimated 6000 foreign Jews watched with anxiety the approach of the deadline at midnight tonight of an order for them to leave Italy. With no place to go, they lack permission to enter other countries.

After midnight they are subject to arrest for violation of the expulsion decree issued last fall when they were given six months to wind up their affairs and leave.

About 2000 non-Italian Jews were estimated to have compiled. Beginning tomorrow the others will continue to live here only on the sufferance of the Italian government.

About 200 American Jews residing here appeared safe for the time. The United States embassy made representations on their behalf. Tentative exemptions were gained by reminding authorities that Americans by treaty have the same rights in Italy that Italians have in the United States.

It was indicated the government would not take immediate action against most of the refugees.

Foreign Jews more than 65 years old have been exempt from the decree. No blanket assurance has been given the others, most of whom are refugees from Germany, however, but several said that officials permitted them to file requests for exemptions and that action would be taken against them pending disposition of the requests. Consular figures showed that about 200 foreign Jews in Italy have obtained visas to enter the United States.

7 Greater Boston Fires Peril Scores

The lives of scores of persons were endangered and heavy damage caused by seven fires which kept Greater Boston departments on the jump throughout the night and early today.

Two Somerville families, including an 11-months-old baby, were driven out—one in Albion street and the other in lower Broadway.

Mr. and Mrs. Neshan Hekimian and their sons, Walter, 13, and Michael, nine, were forced to flee their Albion street home when flames, starting from a defective heater, swept through downstairs stores and into their apartment. Damage was estimated at $7000.

Patrolmen Timothy Corkery and James Hughes led out Mrs. Elizabeth Weyas and her 11-months-old baby when fire started in a Broadway radio store, beneath her apartment. Damage was set at $800.

GREENHOUSE BURNS

Spring blooms went up in smoke in a two-alarm fire which raced through the greenhouse of Joseph Morganti, in Water street, South Quincy.

Starting in a heater-room, the flames spread to the adjoining greenhouse. Deputy Chief Peter Creedon estimated damage at $5000.

Most serious of the fires broke out in the Waltham Theater, driving 650 persons to the street. Damage was placed at $10,000.

Two projectionists, Robert Fuller of Lexington, and John McLaughlin of Waltham, remaining at their posts and continuing the picture to avert panic in the Waltham theater blaze, were trapped and forced to climb from a window over the marquee and down a ladder to safety.

FIRE IN WINTHROP

Among the several children rescued in the fire in a three-story house in Winthrop st., Winthrop, was a three-weeks-old infant. The house is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kirby and their two children; Mr. and Mrs. William Sobey and their five children; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shalman and Alan MacDonald.

The flames were first noticed by Mrs. Winifred Bensen, 27, of Almont st., Winthrop, a visitor, who picked up the Kirby baby and carried her to safety.

In Lexington, fire of mysterious origin swept Sacred Heart Church vestry, causing damage of $1500.

Mrs. Johnson, Wollaston, Dies

Mrs. Olive B. Johnson, 72, mother of Howard Johnson, well known chain restaurant owner, died today following a long illness at her home, Summit avenue, Wollaston.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at Wollaston Unitarian church, with the Rev. Carl G. Horst officiating. Burial will be in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson was the widow of George H. Johnson, long-time resident of Quincy. Besides her son, Howard, who was notified of her death in Florida, she leaves three daughters, Mrs. Barbara Montgomery, Mrs. Margaret White and Miss Katharine Johnson, all of Quincy.

That 'Grand Jury Mystery' Is Solved

BROCKTON, March 11—All the mystery surrounding the unauthorized summoning of the grand jury of Plymouth County was explained away today by Benedict P. Mooney, former candidate for mayor.

He said he and "a spontaneous group of citizens interested in good government" tried to call the jury together to probe alleged incompetence and graft.

MET. OPERA HERE FRIDAY; TIBBETT TO SING 'FALSTAFF'

By RUTH MARSTERS

Metropolitan Opera at the Boston Opera House!

If the 16 days of performance beginning March 16 are currently the focal point of a phenomenal amount of public interest, it is not entirely without reason.

The general rise in enthusiasm for opera since Gatti-Casazza predicted its doom upon his retirement as director of the Metropolitan in 1935 may have its basis in a number of psychological facts.

But the immediate anticipation felt hereabouts is simply explained from the two-fold aspect of repertoire and cast which promise to make the Metropolitan's Boston season as brilliant as it is scheduled to be brief.

Thursday evening's performance of Verdi's great comic opera "Falstaff" establishes something of a precedent in being the first revival to open a season here. And it appears a good choice—if "Falstaff" has been one of the most successful revivals of the New York season, Lawrence Tibbett's portrayal of the title role has been one of the most talked of characterizations

MAKES DEBUT AS MIMI

Grace Moore, who makes her Boston debut as Mimi in the Saturday matinee performance of "La Boheme" will appear in the second revival of the Boston season as Louise in Charpentier's delightfully French opera of that name on Tuesday evening, March 21.

The third revival, "Thais," will bring one of the new members of the company, Marjorie Lawrence, to Boston for the first time in the title role on Friday evening, March 24.

Verdi will be represented a second time on Wednesday evening, March 22 with a performance of "Aida," the cast to include Elisabeth Rethberg, Bruna Castagna, Giovanni Martinelli, John Charles Thomas, Ezio Pinza and Norman Cordon.

The closing performance of "Rigoletto" on Saturday evening, March 25, brings together the brilliant talents of Lily Pons, Lawrence Tibbett, and Jan Kiepura.

WAGNERIAN PROGRAM

And, for the rest, there is Wagner. Of all the achievements of the Metropolitan's great Wagnerian wing none perhaps has so captured the public fancy as "Tristan und Isolde."

It is precisely for this reason that "Tristan und Isolde" will be given two performances here, the first on Friday evening, March 17, the second on Wednesday afternoon, March 22. Flagstad and Melchior will, of course, appear in the title roles on each occasion.

The celebrated pair will also be heard in "Die Walkuere" on Monday evening, March 20, in "Tannhaeuser" on Saturday afternoon, March 2.

"Lohengrin" scheduled for Saturday evening, March 18, is cast superbly with Kirsten Flagstad, Kerstin Thorberg, Rene Maison, Herbert Janssen, Emanuel List, and George Cehanovsky.

"Die Meistersinger," brings Kerstin Thorberg again on Thursday evening, March 23 with Irene Jessner, Charles Kullman, Friedrich Schorr, Adolf Vogel, and Emanuel List.

although both are now out of incubators and the pride and joy of nurses at the hospital.

But when Lorraine returned to see them, police were waiting. They had learned she was the former cigarette girl and not the "Mrs. Robert Hurley," the name under which she registered.

"I pray so for one more chance—for my babies," she told Dr. Van Waters today.

"I am interested now only in those little youngsters.

"I want them with me and I will tell the judge that as soon as I am able to go to court. In fact, I am anxious to get the whole thing over, once and for all. I know I won't ever make a serious mistake again.

BEGS FOR CHANCE

"My conscience never has been clear since I ran away.

"All I hope is that the judge will take under consideration what I have suffered and give me the chance to make good for the babies.

"I feel really encouraged now. I feel sure that everything is going to come out all right and I hope my experience will be of help to some other girl about to make a mistake."

The babies were born on St. Valentine's Day.

Marriage Date Hazy to Shutta

CHICAGO, March 11 (INS)—Ethel Shutta, the singer, couldn't remember at first in what year she was married in her divorce action against Band Leader George Olsen. When the judge asked her, she said:

"In 1925."

Then she snapped her fingers, just as she's done many times when sh was on the stage and Husband George's band was behind her.

"Excuse me," she said. "I mean 1926."

She was granted a divorce and $150 a month alimony for support of their two children, Charles, 11, and George, Jr., 5, but it was understood that an out-of-court settlement also had been made. She charged desertion.

Greet Easter in things new!

Swing into Spring in a new, full skirted coat that swirls with Spring rhythm as you walk! This light hearted fashion inspired by Cossack verve is as new as tomorrow! Life casts care to the winds in coats so designed for adventure. You'll see coats like the smart ones sketched in all Boston's Value Belt Stores. Dramatic different coats that look like dresses with impeccable dressmaker details —coats that fit beautifully through the bodice and swirl into yards of flare at the hem—coats with spanking white collars of pique! Coats in colors that reflect the golden warmth of April sunlight. When you see them you'll decide that you simply MUST have a NEW COAT—one that's FULL-SKIRTED—and gives your waist a fragile spanned-by-two-hands look. Then you'll swing into Spring looking pretty, feminine and very 1939ish!

Come to Boston for the extremely practical reason that you don't intend to spend one penny more than you can help. Boston's great stores are called "The Value Belt" because the tremendous volume of goods sold here makes big savings that you can see right on the price tags, because they have to give better values than other stores to continue doing business. But value is more than price, alone. Come to Boston because you save on other things as well as price. You save satisfaction in finding exactly what you want out of superior variety. You save quality because these great stores cannot continue unless you continue patronizing them. You save missing the style in The Value Belt where you have the full range of smart styles and the aid of style consultants. And, certainly as important as price saving, is the peace of mind you save in the absolute dependability of every representation made to you in these great stores.

7 IN N. E. WIN PUCK AWARDS

A laugh in every puzzle! And the chance of sharing in $100 in cash prizes every week!

That's what Boston Sunday Advertiser readers write us they get from the Stars and Stripes Puzzle Contest Club, appearing every Sunday in the Hearst comic weekly, Puck.

Winners of the February 26 contest, announced today, are headed by Robert Louis Stevenson, of Chicago, national puzzle champion of the week. He will receive a gold-engraved championship diploma, glassed and framed, in addition to one of the regular 100 national prizes of $1 each.

The judges also announce a "surprize" to Bertha L. Bird, of Lexington avenue, Needham Heights, Mass., for her exceptionally meritorious answers. This too, is in addition to one of the regular $1 prizes.

The boy contestants took a spurt and submitted 43.4 per cent of the entries. Billy White, club editor, is still looking hopefully toward the day when they will pass the girls.

Another "Stars And Stripes" contest appears in your comic weekly, Puck, next Sunday. Join this funniest of puzzle clubs. You'll get a wiz ly laugh—and maybe a cash prize in the bargain.

Winners of the March 5 contest will be announced in your Boston evening American next Friday.

New England winners for Feb. 26, each of whom will receive a cash prize of $1, are:

Philip Perkins, Autumn street, East Lynn; Dorothy French, Winter street, Haverhill; Nick Galla, Marion street, East Boston; Lee Anderson, Maple street, Malden; Mrs. Bertha L. Bird, Lexington avenue, Needham Heights; Arthur O. Tucker, South street, Foxboro.

Hugh Goodwin, Ascutney street, Windsor, Vt.

Virginia Bruce Wins $50 But Won't Collect

LOS ANGELES, March 11 (AP)—Virginia Bruce, motion picture star, could be $50 richer today because her landlord sued her.

T. M. Morgan, owner of a home Miss Bruce rented, sought $830 damages, asserting furnishings were not left in good condition. She retaliated with a suit asking $75 for cleaning the house. She was awarded $50 but would not collect it.

Find 36 Aliens In WPA Here

Only 36 of 120,000 Massachusetts WPA workers were aliens, it was revealed at WPA headquarters today on completion of a survey of Bay State rolls.

More than 400 investigators completed the probe in compliance with an order from Washington in which aliens are barred from WPA.

In the same survey, only eight youths were found to be aliens in the ranks of the National Youth Administration.

"The Man Who Never Died"—John L.
Special Treat in Mystery Stories

Thomas Morgan's Story on the New Pope
If War Comes to New England

Woman Lawyer's Views on Divorce
Sports Parade and News of the Day

By GEORGE LEWIS

THE MAN WHO NEVER DIED! The Boston Sunday Advertiser presents him tomorrow.

That is hardly an exaggeration, for Austen Lake, in one of the best of his many excellent stories, is bringing this amazing man to life.

The "immortal" is John L. Sullivan, the "Boston Strong Boy," whose great career in the ring is known to every sports fan.

Millions of words have been written about the colorful champion and much concerning his rugged existence revealed. But there still remains a great deal to tell.

These are the facts Austen Lake gives tomorrow.

Atty. Chisholm

THE GREEN MAGAZINE, distributed with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, promises a special treat for mystery story devotees.

The treat is Paul Whelton's hair-rising tale, aptly titled: "The Unfinished Grave."

It is a truthful account of a crime committed in New England—a crime so breath-takingly astounding that only a snake charmer could solve it!

EVERYBODY IS READING Thomas B. Morgan's story of the life of Pope Pius XII. Because of this writer's long association with the Pontiff, he writes with a sympathy and knowledge denied most authors. Tomorrow, on the day of the Papal coronation, his Sunday Advertiser feature will be particularly interesting.

Additional facts about the new Pope will be told by Father Gabriel, C. P., of the Passionist Monastery in Brighton, who knows him personally.

Joe Cronin

COLLIN CLINE continues his Lenten story, "The Life of Christ." He describes one of the most dramatic events in the Savior's earthly ministry, and illustrates it with the production of a beautiful and reverent painting.

A QUESTION often asked is: "Who is the glamour girl of Boston society?" Few can or dare to give the answer.

The exception is Lucius Beebe, top-hat reporter, who without fear or favor, selects the young woman whom he considers the "deb of debs."

IF WAR COMES, New England industrial plants are going to be protected. That is the assurance of Commander Andrew R. Mack, head of the Department of War Plans at Boston Navy Yard. Defense plans are explained in Commander Mack's Advertiser interview.

ALL WOMEN will want to read about Attorney Jeannette Chisholm's views on divorce.

Talking to an Advertiser reporter, this distinguished member of the bar, formerly assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, says wives are largely to blame for the great number of marriages that fail nowadays. But Attorney Chisholm is an optimist and she offers a remedy.

SCIENTIFIC-MINDED men and women are going to find information and interest in the story that comes to the Advertiser from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

It seems unbelievable. Yet a new discovery may make it possible for a single pound of metal to provide more energy than the biggest electrical power plant of the present time!

THE SPORTS PARADE will be "must" reading in every New England home. Joe Cronin tells Sam Cohen how the Red Sox may very likely stop the Yankees in the 1939 pennant race.

Joe Cashman gives expert opinion concerning Casey Stengel's new batting strength for the Bees.

Jack Conway, in his "Untold Stories of the Ring," exposes the $55,000 gambling plot to have Jack Sharkey lose to Jim Maloney in their New York bout.

A ROOSEVELT'S OPINION! Eleanor Roosevelt of Boston may not be so famous as her illustrious aunt in the White House, nor half so well known as the President.

But Eleanor Roosevelt of Boston, charming and intelligent "deb," has very definite views concerning the duties of young women in society. In a sparkling talk with an Advertiser reporter, Eleanor tells precisely what she thinks about traditions, customs and social behaviour.

WHEN CRIME POSES AS SPIRITUALISM—that is the title of the interest-packed article Miss Rose Mackenberg writes in the AMERICAN WEEKLY, which comes to New England readers with their Sunday Advertiser.

Miss Mackenberg, chief investigator for the late Harry Houdini in his campaign against fraudulent mediums and a recognized authority on this subject, exposes vicious acts of blackmail, robbery and murder committed by charlatans who betray heartsick victims in the name of dear, departed dead.

Why do Hollywood marriages fail? Why has matrimony disappointed such stars as Joan Crawford, Ruth Chatterton and Alice Fay?

In the AMERICAN WEEKLY, readers will find logical and probable answers.

BRADSHAW Plan Shoe Fair As 'Biggest Ever'

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Plans for the Boston Shoe Fair are nearly complete . . . It is recognized by the trade as top buying event for the fall and winter season . . . Projected arrangements indicate the 20th annual gathering of manufacturers and buyers will be exceptionally well attended . . .

In fact, it is the outlook for an attendance far in excess of last year's that prompts the fair committee to announce its plans so far in advance . . . For it is not to open [illegible] . . . Running through the eighth . . . Offices [illegible] are the Statler and Parker House . . . The New England Shoe and Leather Association sponsors the show . . . And President [illegible] A Benjamin of the Farmington Shoe Mfg. Co. is chairman of the [illegible] Louis H Salvage of the Louis H Salvage Shoe Co. of Manchester, N. H. heads the committee in charge of arrangements . . . [illegible] Maxwell Field serving as secretary-manager . . .

DEADLINE . . . For [illegible] supporting an early spring trade upturn don't worry . . . Factor unexplained however, if there is no big advance . . . Right [illegible] . . . We see it delayed until late April early May . . . Business [illegible] dependable promises to shift from consumer goods to durable goods industries . . . It is a good sign . . . That will [illegible] to relief spending in both categories . . . to be replaced by private spending . . . The latter will not distress observers . . . Who feels it necessary for [illegible] ness to supersimpose another steep upturn on the [illegible] . . . They do well to hold present high rates . . . Consolidation is needed [illegible] for recovery's next important impetus . . . And it will come in the middle quarters of the year, when it expands faster.

GOOD SUPPORT . . . Was [illegible] in market dealings in the final sessions of the week . . . Digest [illegible] weakness . . . Only to steady up [illegible] . . . Aviations found the going rougher but [illegible] . . . In the first instance [illegible] was enough to chill bullishness on the group . . . In the [illegible] and profit restrictions tended to shut buyers away . . . [illegible] importance is that bad news did not upset the [illegible] . . . It was confined to affected sections . . . Just so long as selling fails to spread higher prices are the all-around probability . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . [illegible] of E. H. Vogel sales manager of General Electric's radio [illegible] which provides the Lynn plant with a bright note . . . [illegible] big business for this new industry . . . And says the company is preparing to set up 512 transmitters in principal cities . . . Mr. Vogel also goes on record with the prediction television will be a billion dollar business within six years . . .

BITS O' GOSSIP . . . Earnings estimators are around with their ideas on the motor industry . . . And they make nice reading . . . General Motors is [illegible] their books for $3.50 per share, as profit margins are believed up to 1936 levels and it is expected to get 40 per cent of the '39 market . . . Chrysler is expected to net in the vicinity of $4 per share . . . Assuming it maintains approximately 25 per cent of estimated sales by the industry . . .

ASK NEW SETUP FOR R. R. RELIEF

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—A four-point program for rehabilitation of the nation's railroads will be presented to the Senate shortly by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.) of Montana, he revealed today.

Wheeler, who is chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, told International News Service the legislation upon which his committee will hold hearings probably late next week calls for:

Creation of a three-judge court to adjudicate all financial reorganizations of railroads.

Inclusion of Inland Waterway transportation in the regulatory power of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Repeal of an old law authorizing the I. C. C. to draft general railroad reorganization plans, such as consolidation of carriers into regional groups.

Final authority upon railroad consolidations to be placed in the I. C. C., with the carriers taking the initiative in drafting plans.

On the proposal to create a court which would pass upon all railroad receivership applications, Wheeler said he held an open mind, though he was in favor of the other three points in the program.

"This is the only major legislation on the railroads that I now intend to introduce at this session of Congress," Wheeler said in voicing the opinion that an improvement in general business would be the best tonic for the carriers.

"I believe the I. C. C. should have authority to regulate rates charged by waterway in order to synchronize the railroad, water and auto truck transportation systems," he said.

Louis B. Mayer is that proud of himself for thinking up the idea of glorifying the movie exhibitors, the forgotten heroes of our glamorous industry.

L. B. is so pleased on account that he wants Spencer Tracy to play the lead a second time for.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE autographs stage door at the Shubert where she opens a two-week engagement in "Skylark" Monday night

Samson Raphaelson's new comedy, "Skylark," will be seen for the first time on any stage at the Shubert Monday night. John Golden presents the play and Gertrude Lawrence is the star.

Miss Lawrence has repeatedly demonstrated her right to be numbered among the first ladies of the stage. As Lydia Kenyon, in "Skylark" she has a role entirely dissimilar to the feather-brained Jan Trexel in which she scored such an emphatic hit here and elsewhere.

John Golden is probably America's most highly respected producer. He has been active in the theater for over 30 years and has presided many of the most thrilling stage successes of that period.

The story of "Skylark" has to do with a modern young American husband and wife who, at the outset, are very much in love with each other and whose lives seem to be full of various complications.

The company to be seen in support of Miss Lawrence includes Joan Aviers, Donald Cook, Lee Patrick, Walter Gilbert, William Post, Jr., Lester Berton, Horace Braham, Olga Hansen and Ann Revere.

The engagement at the Shubert is limited to two weeks and will positively end on March 25.

* * *

The opening performance on Monday evening of Maxwell Anderson's play, "Key Largo," by the Theatre Guild, scheduled for the Colonial Theatre, has been postponed one week, until March 20.

The cast of "Key Largo," which is headed by Paul Muni and Gladys George, will remain intact.

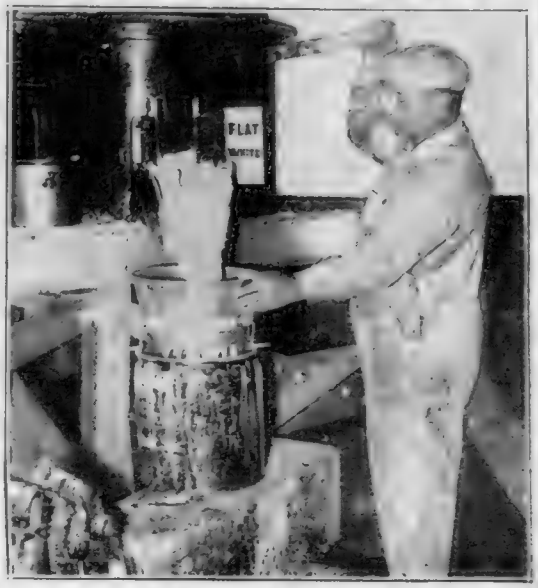
IT'S 'FORE RIVETS' NOW AS U. S. ORDERS TWO NEW CRUISERS AT BETHLEHEM PLANT



Bang

Think of a shipyard and you think of automatic riveters, like this one these Fore River workmen will operate on new cruisers ordered by U. S.

Splash

If you get all hot and bothered slapping a brushful of paint on your scratched auto fender, just be thankful you aren't one of the Fore River workers who do the painting on brand new modern ships.

HERE'S HOW THE FINISHED PRODUCT APPEARS

Spark—A modern ship has at least 200,000 feet of electric wires and cables. It takes an expert to keep 'em sorted out and put 'em in right. Here's one of the Fore River yard's crack "cable-pullers" doing his stuff.

Flash—Here's the weird-looking "boogeyman" who is driving the shipyard riveter out of business. He's the electric welder—and his incandescent arc can put steel ship parts together faster and more permanently than a dozen rivet hammerers.

The Life of Christ

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Jesus heals the sick and restores strength to the aged.

By COLLIN CLINE

THE MERCY of our Saviour was boundless. Wherever He went He caused wonderful compassion on all on Jew and Gentile alike. He cured [illegible] who believed in Him.

We can imagine the amazement of the people of the time when they saw Him extend His hands and touch lepers.

The [illegible] came one day to the place where Jesus was preaching and fell down, saying: Lord, if Thou will, Thou canst make me clean.

Jesus listening to the supplicant answered: "I will, be thou clean." Immediately the malady vanished.

The [illegible] many that were to follow it had a divine purpose. Jesus knew [illegible].

The [illegible] when He said to a paralyzed man: 'Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.' Scribes standing nearby were [illegible] and reasoned secretly: Who can forgive sins but God only?

He [illegible] knew their thoughts and said: "Is it easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, take up thy bed and walk?' But, that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins, He saith to the sick of the palsy, Arise, and take up thy bed and go thy way into thine house."

The man was instantly cured.

The [illegible] by His healing of the body that it was also [illegible].

The [illegible] listening to the aged and infirm was [illegible] Dore [illegible] who died in Paris [illegible]. His [illegible] and imagination it is unsurpassed.

TOMORROW in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the beautiful story of the raising of a little girl from death will be told. A picture by a contemporary artist chosen because of its historical accuracy, will illustrate the dramatic scene.

Mr. Hearst Praised

FROM THE WEST, as from the East, come hundreds of letters and telegrams voicing enthusiastic approval of the remarks of William Randolph Hearst in a recent radio address, "Plea for Prosperity."

E. L. LIPMAN, chairman of the board of directors of Wells Fargo Bank and the Union Trust Company, lauded Mr. Hearst's address.

"We have to thank Mr. Hearst for putting into words that which many of us are thinking."

The necessity for "replacing reform with recovery" was urged by Marshall Dill, president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

"Mr. Hearst said, 'Industry must do more than think. It must act, and it can be ABLE to act.' The lack of business confidence de[illegible] by the secretary of commerce. He [illegible] and commended upon by Mr. Hearst can be overcome only by the removal of the uncertainties which have confronted industry. [illegible]

"When this is accomplished and necessary reforms reform, the confidence of business will return and with it there will be normal employment and normal prosperity," he added.

FROM WILLIAM R. BACON, president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, came enthusiastic approval of the address. He said:

"Persons in the securities business will undoubtedly agree with Mr. Hearst that from now on the emphasis must be recovery."

Approval of the broadcast was voiced by William Humphrey, president of the Tidewater Associated Oil Company.

"I agree with Mr. Hearst's statement that prosperity will return with a return of confidence among business leaders," Humphrey said.

Human Side of News -s- by EDWIN C. HILL

DOWN IN sun-bathed San Antonio they are about to celebrate reverently and proudly one of the most heroic incidents in American history.

From all over will go a pilgrimage of boys and girls from the colleges and schools of the Lone Star State to lay a gay cross-triangle of flowers along the scarred walls of the Alamo, the Shrine of Texan Liberty. The Alamo symbol of heroism in our history.

WHEN NEWS CAME on March 6 [illegible] little city of San Antonio and marks broke from Santa Anna's guns [illegible] there was not one man alive to tell the story of the most gallant and costly defense in the annals of fighting men.

Texas at the time was part of Mexico, waxing under repressive oppression. The Texans rebelled under [illegible] to be enforced by foreign-born Americans. Then Mexican leader Santa Anna crossed the Rio Grande in a [illegible] threatening death to every American in Texas. On February 24 his vanguard was before the Alamo mission in San Antonio, which Colonel William Barrett Travis and Colonel James Bowie, inventor of the Bowie knife, had captured and were holding defiantly against the "Napoleon of the West."

EDWIN C. HILL
"Remember the Alamo!"

Travis and Bowie, with them the famous Davy Crockett, had with 145 men literally cut their [illegible] through the Mexican garrison to gain the Alamo whose thick walls built to shield worshippers in church from sun were now to serve as a fortress.

It was there that Davy Crockett and a gallant little band of freedom-lovers less than two hundred strong defied a Mexican army of two thousand and, for 13 desperate days, [illegible] the unequal struggle, falling one by one [illegible].

LYING ON THE LAST fatal morning [illegible] Mexicans attacking from [illegible] were stopped only [illegible] than [illegible] a handful of [illegible] Crockett [illegible] Travis and Bowie [illegible] the north wall [illegible] and stood [illegible] plaza.

Once they [illegible] the end was near. [illegible] than 100 white-hot [illegible] 30 times [illegible].

No wonder [illegible] the memory [illegible] that day [illegible] resolution of that [illegible] the flame of [illegible].

STRANGE SOUNDS have been emanating from the studio of a [illegible] auditorium-gym of Boston Hall.

[illegible] and grunts. And [illegible] "Ah" [illegible] for [illegible] and then low "ahs" goes in [illegible].

Stars of the stage and screen have to tell you they climbed to the top and [illegible] rushing hush to earn their way to fame. Eleanor, who hopes to [illegible] Broadway [illegible] she knew most about [illegible] people to talk with [illegible] Back Bay accent.

DICTION TEACHER EARNS HER WAY TO BROADWAY
Eleanor Stevens Tutors Virginia Arden on "Ah's"

ELEANOR has stage in amateur dramatics since babyhood, and has had years of "education" as we used to call it. So she is putting her knowledge to work for her tuition.

She started with a class of children from 3 to 8 teaching them dramatics and working with stammerers and [illegible]. Now she has in addition a class of [illegible] with [illegible] wives but not as [illegible] Back Bay accent.

[illegible] comes to impressing the bosses in sales conferences.

KEEP YOUR EYE on a new and commendable organization, the Brookline Junior Chamber of Commerce. It is composed of young men aged from 21 to 35, most of them from socially prominent families of Brookline. Their [illegible] and [illegible] is to develop [illegible] city for youth in Brookline.

They have limited their membership to 100 and will make a study of [illegible] improvements. Their work in cooperation with [illegible] of Christ are not [illegible].

WE SEE that Commissioner Lee Tsung's opposition to [illegible] against [illegible] national anthem was [illegible] by the [illegible]. The audiences at the Orpheum seemed highly [illegible] although a bit shy about [illegible].

Mediation Needed -s- by HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, March 11 – There is a strike against many of the leading Washington hotels. The waiters want a closed shop, the managers to agree to hire none but union waiters. The hotels are willing to give the union "preference" in hiring waiters, but not an exclusive monopoly.

The picket line is of the "chain" variety, pickets in columns constantly walking back and forth in front of all entrances. Photographers are on hand to take pictures whenever they catch bag-shot politicos walking through picket lines.

To avoid having the President do this, a party in his honor at a principal hotel is being called off.

THAT RAISES a prickly problem. Very few people like to cross a picket line. Politicians especially do not like to do so.

But Washington is only a temporary residence for most members of Congress. Hotels are the only homes some have.

In this strike, the teamsters have joined sympathetically by refusing to deliver food and supplies to hotels on strike. What this all boils down to is a strike against the guests as well as the hotels, an interference with innocent bystanders who are in no position to aid or hinder either side of the argument.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
His Party Called Off

Speaking generally, hotel employees have had less consideration than many other groups. More advantage has been taken of them. They work longer hours for lower wages.

NRA got more for them than they had ever had before because it didn't require a union. But although NRA took the Washington hotels to prosperity from a general state of collapse, those hotels were backward about improving the condition of their help.

Knowing so well the history of their case, it is impossible not to sympathize strongly with the workers.

IN THE RAILROADS such strikes rarely happen because there is good statutory machinery for mediation.

Surely such machinery is a necessary part of secure and well-ordered government in all the service industries at the very least.

ANYTHING GOES at the Junior Dinner Dances . . . the boys can get away with wearing earrings and even smoking their pipes . . . an unheard of thing at any high class night club . . .

Last evening, the final party in this exclusive series of subscription dances was held at the Copley Plaza . . . It was a fancy dress affair . . .

Lindsay Ware's concession to the "Come in costume" invitation, was a scarlet matador cape thrown nonchalantly over his broad shoulders topping a white shirt and tuxedo trousers. His wife was far more lavishly outfitted in a hula hula skirt and many flower leis around her neck and hair . . .

Frederick W. W. Richardson evidently has always had a suppressed desire to wear earrings . . . for he blossomed out with a fancy pair of turquoise stones in each ear, to top off a simple Alpine rig of lederhosen and linen jacket . . . His wife the former Anne Warren, went Spanish in a lavishly embroidered silk shawl and a Carmen Lairdo . . .

No one seemed to care if a number of the Tyrolean lads smoked their pipes during dinner, or the race track touts in checked suits puffed at long black cigars . . . but everyone was full of sympathy for Ted Eliot, who came as the victim of a skiing accident, with his face covered with bandages and adhesive tape . . . until they saw his back sporting a poster of a skier taking a tumble and announcing "You May be Next!" . . .

Whether it is the fun of appearing in fancy dress, or the opportunity of seeing so many old friends, we cannot say . . . at any rate loads of Boston girls who have married and moved to other cities, come here each spring for the last of the Dinner Dances . . . Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scott (Caroline Hunnewell) were here for the party last night . . . Caroline, who is a skiing enthusiast, wore a little Tyrolean outfit she picked up on one of her jaunts to the Alps for winter sports . . .

Attractive Pleated White Linen Costume

MARY BIRD PHILLIPS and her husband, Walter, were on from Philadelphia . . . being greeted on all sides by their former playmates . . . Mary wore a beautiful Czechoslovakian outfit, of white pleated linen exquisitely embroidered with red . . . Great ropes of red beads and red slippers completed the outfit . . .

Among the Japanese girls in lovely silk pajamas were Mrs. Chatfield Whitman Mrs Lawson Davis and Cornelia Pentecost . . . Betsy Robb looked as if she had stepped right out of the Ballet Russe in a flowing Pierrot outfit of black and scarlet, topped by a black and red satin cape and feathered bonnet . . . Mrs. Karl Adams Jr. and Mrs. Richard Rowland Stebbins were among the new mothers in the festive throng . . .

Dottie Preston arrived back from Cuba just in time to give a cocktail party before the dance . . . her guests including Joe Woods who had everybody guessing with his moustache, goatee and heavy eyebrows . . . He wore a Parisian artist's outfit, velvet beret and all . . .

Mimi Little and her beau were among the Bonnie Scots along with Bobby Gannett and Bonnie Forbes . . . Ben Beale was a Spanish caballero but his bandaged hand was not part of his costume . . . He met with an accident last week and crushed his fingers under a rock . . .

Depicts Headdress Styles in 1990

BELLA GRANDIN took a page out of the Surrealists' book and piled a heap of red and white wire antennae on top of her head to give an idea of how corkscrew curls will look in 1999 . . .

Devens Hamlen made his last year's costume do again . . . and came as a hobo, with ill fitting rags and a false nose and moustache . . . Others in the throng were Joanna Palfrey who carried incense with her Turkish outfit and left a pleasant scent in her wake . . . Connie Turner was a cute little Shirley Temple; Agnes Osborne a dignified Queen Victoria in a replica of the ball gown Helen Hayes wore in Victoria Regina; May Bryant as one of the Yeomen of Sherwood Forest; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Guido Perera, Dorothy West, Eleanor Williams, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dwight Fullerton, Jr., Anne Soule, Curtis Prout, Cynthia Forbes, and Jean Tuckerman with her fiance, Malcolm Bancroft . . .

Bermuda Tour By Socialites

Turning their backs on dull care and icy winds, a number of Bostonians will sail two weeks from today on the annual Invitation Cruise to Bermuda to benefit the New England Hospital for Women and Children.

Included among the passengers will be several who took the trip last year. Mrs. Benjamin Estabrook and her son, Edwin Curtiss, are among the many going from Milton. Others include Mr and Mrs. Frederick Chase with their daughters, Edith and Molly; Mrs. Parker Pierce with Richard and Jean Pierce Mr Wingate Rollins and daughter, Sally, and Dr. Paul Withington, who is taking his daughter Patricia.

Roger F. Dexter, one of the young Masters at the Dana School, is going along on the trip and fellow passengers will also include Mr and Mrs Henry P. Kidder, Jr., of Concord, with their daughter, Josephine Thomas S. Wood, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean of Brookline, who is taking her daughter, Mrs. Richard Bolles, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs P. D. Dean, Jr.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY cake is for Emily Saltonstall, who has nineteen candles and one to grow on, to blow out this evening. She is the debutante daughter of Governor and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, and has been honored guest at many social events in recent months.

You Can be Beautiful

Spring Cleaning For Handbags

By ARLINE GOULD

There's nothing that can so completely proclaim your neat, sweet femininity as the interior of your handbag . . . or so thoroughly disclaim it for that matter!

One gadget for your handbag, which can be one of the most complimentary accessories you own, is a little box-full case of hand-colored tissues which provide for everything but everything.

In these days of "speed" the lady we venture to say that doesn't have feeling unflattering thoughts that worried "now-what-have-we-overlooked" glances from strangers when ever before?

COLOR HARMONY

Because everything has a place in this pocket, you can make color and style up to inspiration, with whatever you want changes made based on a quick trip to shopping and the reminder. Your powder room, pick look where it best and more pretty pat to make your eye collection as a test would after all.

Use but a dime and for extra change you may have more manicured when you want it, a case that can be the color of your dress.

You'll find your favorite color harmony and other Parisian with a touch of rouge and rose tone with Tangee and There are also black with fashion white with gold and with gold lipstick matched with a color in the tissue socket.

INSIDE POCKETS

Not more than a few specially tailored bags or vest bag effects have pockets on a series of small pockets are needed for keeping coins safe.

In your all-in-one purse or pocket case Arline Gould LITTLE Kleenex works perfectly as a wide variety of its 20 sheets. And the pocket-sized self-adhesive envelope

NEVER so much real femininity in the spring picture! And to carry through the air of charm such as Jane Bryan has in her new straw saucer bonnet, you must pay more attention than ever to detail . . . today Arline Gould tells of a gadget that brings out all latest instances of neatness'

Secret of Good Waltzing

What beautiful waltzing! Sonja and John are sure to win this contest. How did they achieve such a moment of airy graceful motion?

On count 1 take a long step forward with left foot. 2 Step diagonally forward with right. 3 Slowly draw left foot up to right, transferring weight to left. 4 Take a long step back with right foot. 5 Step back diagonally with left foot. 6 Draw right foot to left, transferring weight to right.

Secret of that gently dipping motion good waltzers have is to bend the supporting knee slightly as you take the long step on Count 1. But on each third count both knees must be straight.

Now with diagrams to guide you easily you swing into the waltz turn, open waltz the hesitation point.

Keep balanced on the balls of your feet let you feel skim the floor, and you'll float dreamily along following your partner with a bumble.

Cooking

Non-Meat Dishes for Lent

By MARTHA LEE

The Lenten season is one to task the imagination of homemakers who face the task of making meatless meals so interesting that the family will not even miss their meat.

When making your plans and cooking, cook books for Lenten recipes give a thought to using them to versatile eggs. They make delicious dishes and on their cases a table of nutriment and economy dishes. A good source of protein like and meat eggs are also rich in Vitamin A and iron and also contain calcium.

Besides they require only a short cooking and are to prepare. Use them more often but they are also part of a quickly and down in price.

To help martha you might make fish and egg main dishes throughout the meatless days of Lent. There are any number of possible dishes some of them of epicurean caliber.

GOLDENROD CASSEROLE

4 hard cooked eggs
1-3 cup grated American cheese
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon chopped pimento
18 crisp crackers
1 tablespoon butter, melted
1½ cups hot milk
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Dust greased casserole with finely crushed crackers. Slice hard cooked eggs and place layer in bottom of casserole sprinkle with cheese and vegetables. Repeat until all is used. Cover with white sauce made from milk, butter, flour, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with crumbled crackers, and dot with the melted butter. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

CURRIED EGGS AND PEAS WITH RICE BORDER

1-3 cup minced onion
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons curry powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
1½ cups milk
1 cup bouillon or consommes

Walking Aids Complexion

Walking is not only the ideal exercise to keep in form physically and ward off excess fat, but it is beneficial to the complexion. The fresh blood becomes moist with the exercise and that's all to the good. Dry hours like the fresh air and are healthy.

Legs keep trim, the waist also. Any woman who will hoist up her chest, flatten her tummy, let her arms swing naturally and chin off two or three miles daily will possess the secret of youth. She'll pass for ten years younger and that's a fact.

TRAILER BLONDE HIDES HER PAST

CHAPTER TWELVE

GLORIA NEWCOMBE, glamour girl actress, had a bright idea. She would show the young man who owned the trailer. Cook, could she! A woman's honor was at stake! Yes, she would cook—cook as well as any woman had ever cooked before.

She was busily lighting the gasoline stove. She was as good at it now as an old hand. It worked like the ideal of all gasoline stoves, the ultra stove, the stove of stoves.

She rummaged swiftly among the stores for food. He could have the rest of the onion soup. Ripe olives, anchovies, hearts of artichokes. Coffee. Hm. Well, here were some simpler things. She got quickly to work, and in a few minutes had a supper steaming on the stove.

Albert wagged his tail and kept stumbling over her feet.

"Why, he said.

Gloria was startled. She could feel the warmth of his body as it passed close to hers. She could smell the spicy odor of his pipe. A queer desire to weep and to fall on a firm expanse of male chest swept over her.

A lot of good that would do.

She took a deep breath. She smiled and put the last touches to the meal. Then she went to the door and called.

"Supper's ready!"

Young Mr. Whatever-his-name-was appeared at the door. He looked around the interior of the trailer with a puzzled expression.

"Say, Miss Newcombe, I'm right in the middle of something. Can't you wait a minute?"

"Supper will be spoiled if you don't come in now."

"Oh, all right." He disappeared.

Gloria sighed. Albert was right with her. No more walks for Albert—not tonight.

• • •

Over their demi-tasses served in the delicate Wedgwood cups, Mr. Stephen Greene of the Harvard Racquet and Savage Clubs and Miss Gloria Newcombe of the Metropolitan dallied lazily. Between them stuck firmly into saucers, two candles burned.

The soft sheen of linen shirt front and of powder blue satin gave grace and dignity to the occasion. Their voices were appropriately low, their accents well-modulated.

"Won't you tell me more about your music?" Gloria cooed.

"Won't you tell me more about yours?"

"Oh, it's nothing to compare with yours! I wouldn't speak of it in the same breath. You know all about me now. A couple of appearances at the Carioca Club every week, and the rest of the time a home girl, in my tiny nest on Hudson Street."

"Hudson Street!"

"Certainly. Over a garage."

TEA FOR TWO! After dinner, Steve and Gloria discuss music and New York. But she refuses to explain why she suddenly sought refuge in the trailer.

"A garage!"

"Yes, with the big transcontinental buses coming in for overhauling and refueling. Mm! I'm aware for hours just listening."

TO THE MUSIC ROOM!

"I see. Sounds wonderful. Look, I believe—isn't that is about time for me to go? I think your voice gives you away. I know you were a pretty good singer from that."

"Thanks very much."

"Sure. I can't be fooled about voices."

"Oh. You can?"

Steve got up. "Shall we go to the music room, Madame la Comtesse?"

"Mais je suis chloureuse!"

"Me too. Would you like to hear something?"

"Yes, of course. What is so delightful as to relax after dinner to the dainty strains of some Debussy tone poem?"

"Debussy! I hate him. Neurotic spells and moans, then he goes boom, crash! So powerful. You'll be asking for Tschaikovsky next."

"I certainly will not. I'm asking for Greene."

"Humph! That's better."

"Play one of your—shorter compositions."

"My compositions are all short. Should a poem go by the yard?"

His hands began to wander over the keys. He sighed. Good tone, for a little dingus like this. He smiled at her. "Like my piano?"

"It's cute."

"I designed it."

"You're cute too."

Hmph. I dare say." He played one of his more conventional songs. She talked all right, but you couldn't expect her to know too much. A certain kind of sleek, smart woman could always appear to know the latest and best of everything, no matter what, if it was a subject for polite after-dinner conversation.

A STRANGE PERSON

No matter how distinguished a man was in his field, even if he was a great authority known all over the world, these bright women never hesitated to talk right up to him and what was the worst of all to talk back, to argue, to disagree.

Hah! Women! He broke off abruptly.

"What's the matter? I liked it."

"I'm sure you did. I picked it as you would."

What was the matter with this man? Something seemed to be bitting him, troubling even a man of the time. Another one of those tragic girls from Paris? How dull, if that was it. She thought that had gone out of style.

So much of it a few years ago and these young people are being coming up to general taboo to remain—none and all—so open-minded. Everything seemed to have been tried all over the world could see them.

"I would've loved hearing some of your stuff. What's it?"

Stuff! Some of his stuff! He smiled. "Oh, I'll play a few of my numbers. He got up from the piano and crossed over to the radio. A night club act she would like most. But I am sure to have an awful kind of thing. Let's see if there's something a bit more popular. He turned the radio on.

Gloria fell. "Oh, no. I'll Love You Dear. Please. I'll do it. I liked it very much. I was just hoping you'd play it."

Presently the music stopped. Gloria got up and then paused as the radio announcer began to speak. Now what? He'd had a date with Miss Mc—— tonight.

First it was the announcer, then Parkin, then the Mc—— and now it was Albert. He knew where the hell he was and what he was doing now. He could hear Albert's voice from the trailer, growling, then the sound of a blow.

A fight! Albert and Mr. Parkin! Albert was a fighting fool, he knew. Parkin was big, but Albert was a fighting fool. Albert would not lose.

He turned and called to her. "It's he was we're not all together on this so that we can get on with the job. I'm sorry you've had to be mixed up in it. Unfortunately I can't explain anything to you now. Is there any possibility of your staying here for a few hours?"

What did you do?

"No. I won't tell you."

"I thought so."

"You're an extremely odd young man."

"Am I."

"Yes, you are. I don't know why I brought you up."

He was not very interested. "Thanks very much, but I'm afraid my social engagements wouldn't permit it."

"At the garage, you mean?"

"Certainly, at the garage."

"At any rate, you may as well face the fact that whatever your trouble is it might very well do up with you and you'll have to take steps to return to your garage in the morning. This is an adventure in contentment, not a kidnaping or something."

Gloria's heart jumped.

"I offered to listen to your story indeed to be of help to you but apparently you won't trust me with it. Well, that's your affair."

"I told you I'd got in a jam at the Carioca."

"What were you doing here in the meantime?"

"It's a night club."

"Oh I see."

"When would you expect me to be there, 9 o'clock? That's my bed time."

"Your bed time? Oh, excuse me. I'll leave you to your dreams. If you dream the cops are chasing you, don't scream please." He opened the bed for her. It was rather tricky.

Suffolk to Have Leading Horses | 60-Day Meeting Opens May 15

CHARLEY McLENNAN, new Racing Secretary at Suffolk Downs, was one of the happiest persons in the world when the Racing Commission granted 60 days of racing to the East Boston track. McLennan can now go ahead and arrange for his stake races for the meeting that opens on May 15 and closes on July 22.

The war over racing dates in Massachusetts has held McLennan up in the matter of making arrangements for horsemen to come here. Now that Suffolk Downs has actually received 60 days of racing McLennan can issue his stake book.

The $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap will be held on July 12. It is expected that Stagehand, War Admiral, Kayak II and other leading thoroughbreds will compete in this classic.

The granting of the extra days of racing to Suffolk Downs ended one of the most bitter fights that has existed since racing came to this state.

Suffolk Downs led the early fight against the attempt to give a license and choice of racing dates to Westport. This move on the part of Charles F. Adams and his associates eventually led to Westport losing its license and also the dates it had been awarded.

Two members of the Racing Commission, who had been appointed during the closing days of former Governor Hurley's rule at the State House, resigned once Governor Leverett Saltonstall took office.

• • •

Great Barrington to Get Dates

The Westport application will now have to be turned down as some of its dates would conflict with the Suffolk Downs dates and under the law two tracks cannot operate in the state at the same time if they are within 75 miles of each other.

This means that the remaining 30 days of racing will probably go to Great Barrington.

The success of racing in California and in Florida this year indicates that Massachusetts will also have another winning turf season.

Narragansett Park and Rockingham Park also look forward to good racing and large attendance.

Nobody may be able to beat the races, but thousands of people get a great deal of enjoyment trying to do so.

Bruins' Gallery Fans New York Bound

THERE IS MUCH COLOR to the New York trip tonight of the Bruins' gallery fans. They will ride coaches in a night train so that they will be able to be in the New York Garden tomorrow night when Art Ross' club clashes with the Rangers.

The gallery fans have not attempted to reserve tickets. They will take their places in the admission lines in New York as they did in Boston. These are the real dyed-in-the-wool fans.

With the National League championship among their new hockey trophies, the Bruins can afford to let down tomorrow night against the Rangers, but will probably not do so.

Hockey clubs have found that when they took things easy after winning the league championship they have often been unable to get going at top speed in the early part of the Stanley Cup series.

The Bruins have a young team, and the strain of a hard league schedule does not tell on them as would be the case if the club was composed of veteran players.

Random Shots at Target

GUS SONNENBERG does not expect to weigh more than 208 pounds when he clashes with "The Shadow" in their world's heavyweight championship bout at the Garden on next Thursday night . . . The Dynamiter has proved that with proper training and diet it is possible for even a veteran athlete to get into perfect condition . . . Sonnenberg weighed 230 pounds when he started his comeback campaign a year ago.

Dave Wilson continued to set a wild pace for other handicappers when he came up with five winners at Tropical Park yesterday . . . Wilson led all handicappers with 114 winner at the recent Hialeah Park meeting, and is well on his way to capturing the championship at Tropical Park.

Allan Wilson, former General Manager at Suffolk Downs, has been obliged to cancel a Southern trip on account of pressing business matters . . . Wilson retains his interest in the running and harness horse games.

SUCCESS OF PRO NET TOUR RESTS ON GARDEN MATCH

Fred Perry's boast to local newspaper men that he would beat Donald Budge in the American's second professional tour faces its acid test tonight when the pair meet for the second meeting in the money ranks at the Garden.

Earlier in the week the Britisher was predicted that he would beat the Californian and repeat his Boston triumph of last January, but Perry's failure to stage a comeback in Providence has dimmed the prospects for victory.

SEEMED TO CARRY FRED

There are still over 30 matches for the two top men of the pro ranks.

In their opening Budge ... the first hour, proved by far that he was the master. The Britisher ... into deeper swoops than the New York Yankees have encountered in the American League.

It wasn't the strenuous set tennis, no more so than was the case with which Budge handed out. In the 6-1 6-3 ... Perry ... Budge ... pressed actually to be outplayed Perry.

While in Boston, Perry, ... a session for the press in which he matches with Budge where an amateur. With this ... Fred Perry could see no reason why he should not still maintain the supremacy and told the newspaper ... this.

MUST CONVINCE FANS

Earth in the Britisher and the probable success of the entire tour will be at stake at the Garden tonight. If Perry succumbs as last night the campers will have their hands full convincing the fans to attend for any price.

In addition to the Perry Budge match, Ben Gershacoff and Wayne Sooter both of California will open the program in a singles and later in the evening Gershacoff will pair with Perry against Sooter and Budge in a doubles.

Hopes for the future of professional tennis depend greatly on the outcome of the present tour which finds Fred Perry, British star, engaging in 35 contests with Donald Budge, inset, Californian ace. The pair will make their second stop at the Boston Garden tonight.

New Bedford Five Favored In Tech Finals

New Bedford high schools sixth bid for basketball supremacy may become a reality tonight when the Whalers take over the hangar tonight against Lyn English in the finals of the 14th annual Tech Tournament.

Over the history of the carnival New Bedford has received five invitations but has never reached the final round before this season. In whipping Peabody and then Somerville to gain the finals the Whalers knocked off the pre-tourney co-favorites while playing the most versatile type of basketball seen in action this year.

Coach Win Dodge's boys showed changes of pace that stopped their own slumps as well as put the hush on opponents' spurts. This was most noticeable in the Peabody game when a complete reversal of its attack silenced the Tanners' late threat and clinched the game.

Capt. Chris Townsend, Eddie Riley, Al Palmieri, Jimmy Monteiro and Frank Sowa will again form the starting quintet in tonight's final.

Coach Tom Whelan will send his same five that has led the way to the final round against the Whalers. Led by Angie Nicketakis and Hal Bogart, the combination of Abe Russell, Vin Murphy and Leo Brooks will provide the Lynn fans a lot of cheering before the end of the contest.

Hankins, Irwin Set Golf Pace

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 11 (AP)—Norah Hankins of Montreal and Mrs. R. H. Irwin of Toronto made it an All-Canadian final of the Belmont Manor women's golf tournament. Miss Hankins defeated a third Canadian contender, Mrs. Sidney Powell of Vancouver, B. C., 5 and 4, while Mrs. Irwin turned back Mrs. W. H. J. Trott Jr., of Bermuda, one up.

The last time I dropped in at the Ringside Pete told me of his meeting with the Prince of Wales.

"It happened in my dressing room before my London fight with Jimmy Wilde," said Herman. "Wilde and myself were having an argument over the weight when the Prince of Wales entered the dressing room. He got a laugh out of our excitement, and told us that he was anxious to see the fight.

"Wilde and myself forgot about the weight difference, greeted the Prince cordially, and then went in and fought."

BILL'S SPORT-O-GRIMES

The Bees and Red Sox will open their Florida Grapefruit League season this coming week . . . Manager Casey Stengel isn't interested in the outcome of exhibition games . . . He has a flock of youngsters that he must see under fire before the club breaks camp . . .

The Cincinnati Reds burn themselves out in the spring trying to make an impression with their home fans by cleaning up in the Grapefruit League . . . Syl Apps, the classy center of the Maple Leafs, has entered politics . . . He's a candidate for the House of Parliament from his home district, Brantford . . .

Because his fellow students at St. Bonaventure College wished to honor him, Hank Bunoski, who hails from Williamstown, Mass., was obliged to delay his trip to the Buffalo training camp at Plant City, Fla. . . . Hank is a three-letter man and Steve O'Neil, manager of the Bisons, predicts a future for him as a catcher . . .

Roy Conacher is rapidly forging to the front in the race for individual honors . . . He has 21 goals and 10 assists to his credit and if the local official scorers were as lenient handing out assists as the boys are in other cities, young Conacher would be so far out in front that "Toe" Blake, the current leader, couldn't see him . . .

The holders of Bruin season tickets must pick up their Ranger games ducats next Monday or Tuesday . . . All unsold tickets will be put on public sale March 22 . . . Tommy Richardson is very lucky that Larry McPhail is in Clearwater today with the Dodgers and not in Elmira at the schedule meeting of the Eastern League . . . Richardson and some of his cronies attempted to slip over a fast one last fall when they elected Tommy for a four-year term of office . . .

Judge W. G. Bramham's decision will probably cost Richardson his job . . . Phil Todd, the Red Sox first sacker when Bob Quinn owned that club, will be playing manager this season for the Cookston, Minn., club of the Northern League . . .

Right now, Bill Cowley, the Bruin center, who was chosen for the All Star team last season, is playing better hockey than he has shown all year . . . In his quiet way, Frank Jones is filling in well for Win Green as the Bruins' trainer . . . Manuel Salvo, who was tried out by the Red Sox four years ago, has made a favorable impression on Bill Terry . . .

Casey Stengel tried to get Salvo for his Bees . . . Other than that there is a general shortage of catchers of even average ability. Mickie Owen wouldn't have an excuse to be a Cardinal hold out . . . The Don Budge-Fred Perry tennis match tonight at the Garden will attract a large gathering . . . But, the amateur hockey fans will be at the Arena watching the Olympics battle the Quebec Aces . . .

Pick of Amateurs In Final Tourney

The most thrilling amateur boxing bouts of the year are awaiting New England fight fans who flock to the Boston Garden next Monday night for the grand finals of the 1939 New England A. A. U. boxing championships.

Flyweights, bantams, feathers—all classes up to towering heavies will march in this big parade of powerful punchers.

Forty of the "pick" of the New England Simon-pure ranks will battle for titles in 32 bouts in this "Championship of Champions" program on Monday night, with the winners being selected to go to San Francisco the second week in April for the national boxing championships.

In addition to battling for a title and a chance to gain a Pullman reservation on that California-bound train, every biffer on Monday night's card will be shooting for the special trophy, which is to be presented to the outstanding boxer of the evening. The selection will be made by the press representatives at the ringside.

The 135 pounders who will swap punches are Theodore Tuggle, 19-year-old Roxbury painter and 1939 Mass. State champion; Bill Tordiglione, 21-year-old North End resident, who has won 12 out of 14 tournaments in the last 7 months and who copped the Diamond Belt championship last January. Adrian Merin, a mill hand from Fisherville who has been showing to great advantage in the weekly shows sponsored by the Irish American A. A.; Serafine Branco, 22-year-old Fall River milkman, who is also interested in becoming an actor and Albert Dutra, 19-year-old Cambridge high school student.

The 175 pounders will have the fans leaping on Monday night. Listed for action are Pat Devine of Cambridge; William Brennan, 21-year-old Cambridge clerk; Philip White, 24-year-old Salem truck driver; Leo Gauthier, 22-year-old Northbridge foundry worker, and John Hanson, Swedish champion from Worcester.

Bees Second Team Victors

BRADENTON, Fla., March 11—The Bees regulars made a triple play but the Yannigans won the second scrub game, 5 to 3, in seven innings.

Rookies, led by Bob Kahle with three hits, combed Freddy Frankhouse and Lefty Joe Sullivan for 11 hits.

Al Simmons suffered slight spike wound sliding in fourth and quit. Garms, pinch hitting, fashioned a single to bring in two runs which represented Yannigans margin. Andrews rescued Regulars runs with double.

Score by innings:									R.	H.	E.
Yannigans	0	0	0	2	3	0	0		5	11	1
Regulars	0	0	0	3	0	0	0		3	6	3

Batteries — Earley, Dell, Sutcliffe; Frankhouse, Sullivan and Andrews.

McQuinn's Home Run Gives Browns Game

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., March 11 (AP)—A big eighth inning rally fell one run shy as the Phillies lost their first exhibition game of the season to the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 5, before a record crowd of 3000.

Paced by George McQuinn's homer with one on in the first, the Browns built up a 6-0 edge before the Phils batted around in the eighth scoring five runs on four hits and two errors. The tying run was on third when Ed Feimberg ended the rally by grounding out.

Pastor Scored Second Victory Over McCoy

By JACK CONWAY

Bob Pastor retained his standing as a leading challenger for a title bout with Joe Louis when he scored a decisive victory over Al McCoy in their ten-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden before 5000 fans.

Pastor carried nine of the ten rounds, and gained the votes of Referee Johnny Martin and Judges Jim Shaunnessey and Frank Montgomery.

Dr. King, of the State Boxing Commission, examining Pastor after the bout found he has a temperature of 102. Because of his condition he will stay in a Boston Hotel over the weekend.

Pastor wasn't sick as far as his fighting was concerned. He set the pace for the full ten rounds, and never permitted McCoy to have command for any long period of time.

McCoy's best rounds were the fourth and ninth. He carried the fourth round, while he flashed for a minute in the ninth frame when he rocked Pastor with a terrific right hand punch to the jaw.

HAS FIGHTING HEART

Pastor held on until his head cleared, and then came out of a clinch fighting.

Pastor finished at top speed in the 10th round, and piled up a big lead on points as he drove left and right hand blows to the head and body.

Pastor tossed a variety of punches all through the tussle. He shifted easily from the head to the body, and would cut loose from clinches and drive sharp blows to the head.

The only time Pastor was in any serious danger was when he would get backed into a corner. McCoy landed several times when Bob was in these awkward positions, but the New Yorker always managed to get out into the center of the ring before he suffered any great amount of damage.

PASTOR MISSES BADLY

In the early rounds, Pastor missed with numerous right hand punches as he tried in vain for a knockout. Most of Pastor's looping rights went around McCoy's neck.

There were not any knockdowns. In the fourth session, Pastor slipped and fell to the canvas, while in the sixth round McCoy was wrestled down. Both boxers got up immediately following their mishaps.

Joe Ricciotti of Worcester and Mahamed Fahmy of Egypt went eight rounds to a draw in the semi-final.

Martin Riley of Fall River scored a sensational five-round knockout of Jerry Zullo of Chelsea. Riley had Zullo on the canvas once in the fourth round, and twice in the fifth session. Harry Kelley tossed a towel into the ring when Zullo was helpless on the floor of the ring.

Jack Dubois of Lewiston pulled a surprise when he won from Oscar Suggs of Newport in six rounds. Dubois rallied in the closing round to gain the verdict.

DUARTE, TROY IN MELEE

What Johnny Duarte of Providence and Mike Troy of Worcester lacked in boxing class they made up for by their willingness to trade punches and amuse the ringside customers. Their bout furnished its share of laughs, and the draw decision at the end of six heats was popular.

The gross gate was $6280 while the net gate was $4960.

Boys Club Five Play Harvard

The Boys' Clubs of Boston, Charlestown District, will meet the Harvard Business School Basketball team tonight at the Eben D. Jordan Memorial Gymnasium, Charlestown.

The Cambridge quintet is composed of college graduates, three of whom are former captains of their college teams, and the entire squad is made up of players who are six feet or more in height.

In a preliminary game, the Boys' Club Reserves will meet the fast traveling Woburn Galls.

BOTH McCoy and Pastor hit the canvas but not from a punch. Al is pictured on the floor after a wrestling session with Robert. McCoy came back fighting and won the plaudits of the crowd.

PASTOR'S attempt to throw a left hook to McCoy's body failed when the Boston boxer stepped clear of the intended punch. Pastor was the victor in a ten-round bout at the Boston Garden.

Rock Maker Tops In Wilson's Book

(Selections for Fast Track)

BEST BET—ROCK MAKER

TROPICAL PARK, Coral Gables, Fla., March 11—Rock Maker, B. F. Whitaker's son of Time Maker as entered in the fourth canto here today gets enough chalk figures to stretch from Miami to Boston.

Without working up a steam, Rock Maker has annexed his last two outings and will be after his third consecutive purse. A small field of four others are down to contest the heat, but it seems improbable that any of them will cause much trouble.

General Howes has practically little to drub in the third event and looms as a fuzzle fuz.

With an 18 pound pull in weights, Teddy Weed may head the top weighted Pasteurized who raced with Sir Damion and Bull Lea in the early stages of the Widener.

Chicago Bidding For Title Battle

CHICAGO, March 11 (AP)—Joe Foley, Chicago promoter, asked Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club to delay any action on the site of the Joe Louis-Tony Galento heavyweight championship fight until he hears the proposition to be presented by a group of Chicago business men. The group will meet Monday.

Jacobs in turn suggested the Chicago group withhold any offer until after he learns Tuesday what the New York State Athletic Commission thinks of the bout. If it meets the commission's approval, the fight will be held in New York.

STENGEL'S BIG THREE READY FOR YANNIGANS

By JOE CASHMAN

BRADENTON, Fla., March 11—Danny MacFayden, Jim Turner and Lou Fette, "Big Three" of the Bees' mound corps the past two years, are down to do their first competitive chucking of the current campaign when Manager Casey Stengel sends his regulars and yannigans into the third scrub game today.

Every sign along the trails points to this trio, winner of 94 games in the last two races, starting more than 60 per cent of the Swarm's contests again this season.

For with the possible exception of Dick Errickson, none of the other hurlers present appears to have what it takes to threaten the supremacy of the veteran aces, and young "Lief" is too valuable in the relief role to be burdened very often with starting assignments.

Not that the rest of the gang are so many palookas. Far from it.

With such as Milt Shoffner, Johnny Lanning, Fred Frankhouse, Tom Early, John Pezzullo, Joe Sullivan et al. to pick from to complete the corps, Stengel is looking forward to at least holding his own over the other 40 per cent of the schedule.

But whether the club will be a contender or an also-ran hinges almost entirely on the success enjoyed by Messrs. MacFayden, Turner and Fette.

PRIMA DONNA'S BARRED

Naturally the "Big Three" won't be over-worked down here, regardless of how their mates fare in Grapefruit League warfare. Neither will Danny, Jim or Lou be pampered. They wouldn't want to be, and even if they did, it wouldn't do them any good. Mr. Stengel doesn't permit any prima donna stuff in his ranks.

Making two or three inning bows today, "Case's" pitching prides will go along toiling in turn and gradually extending the length of their efforts so as to be in shape to go nine innings at top speed as soon as the bell rings.

Incidentally, the Bees' supporting cast will be expected to be ready to go the distance not later than next Wednesday, when the St. Louis Cardinals will be faced at St. Petersburg in the first exhibition game.

All hands will be given a chance to do their stuff in these games, but they'll work in units of seven over the full route.

For example, when Hassett, Cuccinello, Miller and Hill start in the infield and Outlaw, Simmons and West in the outfield, they'll play through.

ALL WORK 9 INNINGS

Then, another day, an infield of Fletcher, Majeski, Warstler and Garms and an outfield of Dickshot, Cooney and Hodgins will get a nine inning test.

Stengel believes he can get a better line on the various candidates this way than he could by making frequent substitutions in every game.

The scrub battles to date have revealed little save that the pitchers are somewhat ahead of the hitters, which is to be expected at this time of year.

Berg Falls Before Montanez's Blows

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Pedro Montanez, took a long stride toward a coveted welterweight championship shot at Henry Armstrong by stopping the game British veteran, Jackie Kid Berg, in five rounds of a ten-round bout at the Hippodrome.

After being given a tough, close battle for four rounds, the 142½-pound Puerto Rican nailed his 33-year-old rival with a right hook early in the fifth. Berg, who scaled 146½, dropped as though a tree had fallen on him. He got up at the count of five, but was in such a helpless condition that Referee Frank Fullam halted the bout.

For this fine array of bowling talent, the tourney directors offer their thanks to Lever Brothers and wish them tourney success.

There are several other big mercantile and manufacturing concerns sending entries in, smaller in numbers, perhaps, but piling up to what should easily be the biggest tourney enrty list in the four year tourney history.

These lists will shortly be closing, one week fro mTuesday, in fact. Which indicates the need for haste in filing your blanks.

It's to be one grand good time and fun frolic. So HURRY.

GROVE TEACHES PITCHERS MOUND ART

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 11—Lefty Grove was taking his morning workout from the mound. Tommy Daly was catching.

Lefty was following through his pitches as only Lefty can do. He was perfection itself.

Jake Wade stepped out to watch him. Jake is young and eager to learn.

"Land on your heel, don't you, Mose?" he inquired.

"Every pitch," Grove replied. "Gives you more power. Puts you in better position to field your position, too. You try it, Jake."

Jake stepped on the mound. Back rigid as poker. When he had ended his pitch he landed on his toe.

"Get rid of that old poker back, kid," said Grove." "Here, let me show you."

DALY TARGET

"Do it that way, Jake," said Grove. "Trouble with you is your stride's too short. Try to step in my holes."

Jake went back on the rubber.

"Now bend that left knee. Get loose. Hold onto it a little longer before you let go. And don't forget, land on your heel. Now shoot for Daly's left knee."

Jake tried again. A little better but he landed on his toe, and again, and again.

"There, you got it!" exclaimed Grove a little later. "See the difference? Ain't that easier. Follow through all the time.

"Now keep doing that every day when you warm up. After a while it will become second nature."

Wade was as happy as a schoolboy.

Joe Cronin had come out. "Hey, there, Dickman, come out here," shouted the manager.

Emerson Dickman came trotting out.

"See what Grove's showing Wade? That's what I want you to do. Get on the rubber.

Dickman did. His right leg was stiff. He couldn't land on his heel after the pitch to save his life. He couldn't bend his back. They kept him at it for 10 minutes. He didn't get it.

Grove, Cronin and Pennock kept after him.

"Give that hitter more of your back, Dick," suggested Pennock. "That old Whitehill stuff." Dickman tried that. Better, but not A-1.

And so it goes. The little things that are the big things of pitching. The difference between a great pitcher and a good one. The difference between a major leaguer and a busher.

WADE DELIVERY FINE

Wade has a beautiful delivery. He has pitched some fine ball games. It was he who shut out Cleveland, 1-0, in 1937 when Johnny Allen was seeking his 16th straight victory.

His trouble has been lack of control. Those few tips Grove gave him may improve it, may make him a great pitcher.

Dickman is a kid. He had pitched only 40 professional ball games before the Sox got him. Cronin himself admits they rushed him because they were badly off for pitchers. He needed more schooling.

He has a beautiful curve ball, one of the best in the majors. He has a good fast one. But his control is a bit off, and he doesn't know those little insides that make a pitcher great.

Last year he shut out Cleveland with five hits at Fenway Park. Johnny Allen was up for Cleveland, too.

He was started four more times and didn't last beyond the first inning in any one of the four starts. One game doesn't make a pitcher.

He still has much to learn, and the spring is the time to learn it.
